The Public is Invited to the Governor's Signing of HB581

This is the result of advocacy by families across the State of NH. HB581 shifts the burden of proof and production from the parents to the school districts in special education due process hearings.

HB581 is being publicly signed into law by Gov Sununu on Thursday, July 29th at 3 p.m. at the State House in the governor's council chamber.

This legislation is great news! It happened because of the advocacy of families across the state, including some of our Moore Center families, and we are so happy that it will be signed into law.

The public is invited to attend the signing of this significant legislation for our community.
