Important Transition Information

Hello Moore Center Families,

I am writing to let you know that our transition to a less-restrictive mode of operation is underway. I know this has been a hard stretch for so many of you, and I am hopeful that with continued precautions, we can start to support more of your loved ones in the community. You will be receiving more information from your program contact in the coming week. There are a lot of factors to balance, so I ask for your continued patience as we move forward.

This transition is the next step in our return to service delivery that includes more in-person services and a gradual reintroduction to the community in ways that are safe and make sense. This rollout may be impacted by available staffing and may look and feel a bit different across each area of the organization.

I hope that the warmer weather will facilitate opportunities for shared community experiences, while still following recommended precautions.

Be Well,

Janet
